Virtual Public Speaking Projects

Part of the
Tuesday Webex Workshops Series (age: adult)

Join us on Tuesday, July 14th, at 7pm, to explore the world of Public Speaking in virtual meeting spaces!

Are you wondering how you can use technology to your advantage to continue to connect with youth and work with their public speaking skills?

Times are changing as the world is faced with social distancing, public health regulations, and quarantines, and so is the way that we connect with one another. Working virtually with youth and on their public speaking skills is an opportunity to use technology as a tool to connect with youth in a different way while continuing to provide a platform to learn and grow as individuals. We will look at various platforms that can be used with youth and try them out.

This Webinar is designed to provide 4-H leaders with the necessary tools, skills, and resources to facilitate meetings with youth in a meaningful and educational manner. Although we are apart from each other, we can all still learn to use the available tools to our advantage and, in true 4-H fashion, make the best better!

Whether it’s the weather, transportation, or the need for social distancing, virtual 4-H spaces can be a useful, fun, and effective tool in the positive youth development shed. UConn 4-H continues to explore new ways to experience activities that foster belonging, mastery, independence, and generosity.
